Great book but silly mistakes

By Book Knut

A wonderful read, but marred by unconscionable editing errors highly uncommon to a book of this caliber.

Did you know that John Glen was the first person to orbit the Earth? According to this book he was.

Page 587: "In 1962, John Glenn became the first person to orbit the earth." Sorry Yuri guess you're out of luck.

Page 899: "...if there is some use of interstate commerce, such as the mails.." Mails?

Page 901: "Form 8-Ks to report any significant developments,..." 8-Ks? How about just SEC form 8-K.

I'm just eight chapters into reading this book (bouncing around as my syllabus requires) and probably three chapters in I had noticed several glaring grammatical errors that caught my eye. I didn't start taking notes immediately - as I am not auditioning for the job of editor, but this is really getting a tad ridiculous for a well respected college level text. That makes at least six, by my unofficial and non-expert count, errors that should have been caught, and that's after reading just eight of the forty-seven chapters this book contains. Still this is a good "reed even if de editers cant due der jub."

IT WAS NOT THE BOOK IN THE PICTURE.

By bryanda Martinez

IT WAS NOT EVEN THE LATEST VERSION.

MAKE SURE WHEN YOU SELL AN ITEM IT MATCHES WITH THE PICTURE OF THE BOOK PLEASE.

Used this for my college classes

By Kathleen

The absolute best way to buy college texts is to shop for used versions on line. Even a prior version will get you through most classes for far less money. I don't buy new ones anymore.
