Great Book

By Deedra

This book is just wonderful.....Definitely a must read, the Lisa Whelchel Website was very helpful to me in making my "Purchasing" Decision.

The study book, and book, have both led me to some scriptures that were much needed and appropriate for my situation.....Praise God that Lisa followed God and wrote this book!

I do not know where the first person got such horrible ideas from the book, maybe they should read it, as the other reviewer had recommended.

My opinion when I bought the book, if I could get just one idea, just one, to help me it would be worth it....I have received a lot more than I planned!

Buy the trade book instead

By Stacey

Lisa Whelchel's "Creative Correction" is a good parenting resource. I was skeptical about the study because my kids are both teenagers: what could I do to better parent at this stage in my kids' lives? But I was pleasantly surprised to find that not only did Lisa and the Lord have some parenting tips for me. They also had in mind to give me a better understanding of my own relationship as a child with God and my parents. I would recommend this study specifically to parents of younger children because they will definitely gain maximum benefit from it, but anyone who is (or plans to be) a parent or in a Christian leadership position would reap wisdom from it as well.

However, the video teaching didn't give me anything that wasn't already in the workbook. And the material in the Bible study workbook comes directly from Lisa's trade book of the same name. So, buy that, instead.

Ok for older kids

By Ariel

I mostly enjoyed this study, and think that the author is well versed, however, my child is between 2 and 3 and many things aren't totally applicable to young ones. Seems like better ideas for 5+. I did enjoy her ideas pages at the end of each chapter for how to teach your kids certain traits. I'll come back to that and maybe reread the study in a few years. The homework was only so-so I felt. I enjoyed the ideas of how each child can be different and needs some "creative thinking" to teach.
