As George Bernard Shaw, the great English playwright, neared the end of his illustrious career, a young man approached him with an intriguing question. He asked, "If you could live your life over and could be any person you have ever known or could be any person in history, who would you want to be?" This was a provocative question, for Shaw had known some of history's greatest men and had been a friend of Winston Churchill. He replied, "I would be the man George Bernard Shaw could have been, but never was." How tragic to come to the end of your life and realize that you never reached your full potential. The goal of this book is to teach you how to live your life in such a way that when the end is near, you will have the assurance of a life well spent. This will happen only if you link your life to God's eternal purposes.
